OTHER PARENTAL RIGHTS AND RESPONSIBILITIES

(a) The parents recognize that the children have two parents who love them and want to be involved in their upbringing. They recognize that a close and continuing parent-child relationship and continuity in the children's life will be in the children's best interest. The parents recognize that the children's needs will change and grow as the children mature and the parents will make an effort to parent that takes this into account so that future modifications to the parenting plan are minimized. The parents recognize that the parent with physical custody will make day-to-day decisions and emergency decisions while the child is residing with that parent. The parents agree that the welfare of the children is most important and each agrees to encourage a feeling of affection and respect between the children and the other parent. Neither parent shall involve the children in actions or communications which would endanger the children's opinion of the other parent.

(b) The parents agree to provide each other with their current home address and telephone number, as well as a telephone number to call in case of emergency; they also agree to notify each other of any change in the address or telephone numbers, at least thirty (30) days prior to change.

(c) Neither parent shall do anything to interfere with the children communicating with the other parent. Each parent shall have the right to call and talk to the children when they are in the care of the other parent, up to one time each day, at the expense of the calling parent. Calls shall be made between the hours of _____ a.m. and _____ p.m.

(d) The parents agree that both parents will have access to all of the children's information and records, including, but not limited to, education, health, extracurricular activities, and religious communications.
